ABOUT THIS LIST
This product list contains ergonomic products evaluated and approved by SLAC Environmental Safety and Health. Additionally, some of the listed items are available to test in the Ergonomic Showroom at Building 28 in the Occupational Health Center on an appointment basis. Email ergonomics-slac@slac.stanford.edu to schedule the appointment to the showroom.

PURCHASING INFORMATION
Procurement of ergonomic equipment must be approved by your SLAC supervisor. Supervisors are responsible for ensuring purchases are made and funded from their respective department’s budget. Work with your Department P-Card administrator to initiate product orders. Much of the listed equipment is available through Amazon or Staples. When equipment is only available through a specific source, it is identified at the bottom of the product display table. Office Master task chairs have specific purchasing information included at the beginning of that section as well as Steelcase chairs and sit/stands. A partial reimbursement of your purchase price is available for the ergonomics equipment in this catalog. For information on this process, go to the Reimbursement Request Form.

</table>
  Align letter “B” with center of body
  Allows the mouse to be positioned directly next to keyboard
  If number pad is essential to work tasks, consider an external number pad. Place the numeric keypad on one side of the keyboard and the mouse on the other side to reduce reach |
| !Keyboard too long | If the keyboard is too long, consider a short keyboard option or place mouse to the left of the keyboard |
| !Wrist positions | Traditional or Split Keyboard?
  A split keyboard reduces bending at the wrists toward the pinky fingers
  An adjustable split keyboard may also promote more neutral shoulder posture, reducing the likelihood of the shoulders to round forward
  Elbows should rest on the body when using a split keyboard. If elbows are held away from the body or if wrists are bent either towards the thumb or pinky fingers, the keyboard split angle may need to be adjusted |

Free Built-in PC Dictation Software

Windows 7, 8 and 10 all have free speech to text software that is built-in to the operating system. You can find it by searching for "Windows Speech Recognition" in the search menu of your version of Windows. It can be used with a headset, a USB mic or with the microphone that is built-in to your computer.

More information can be found here:

- Setting up your Microphone and Testing your Microphone
- Using Dictation
- Common speech recognition commands

Free Built-in Mac Dictation Software

Built-in speech to text software that Apple includes with all of its computers. Enable it by going to System Preferences and clicking on Dictation. If your Mac has a built-in microphone, you can use that, otherwise, dictation works well with USB microphones too. For a better experience, check the box next to Use Enhanced Dictation. This allows you to use speech to text on your Mac without an internet connection, and will ensure the text appears in real-time as you speak.

- Setting up and how to use dictation

Google Voice Typing

- Use your voice to dictate documents or enter text in Google Forms, Docs, Sheets, etc.
- Activate by Ctrl+Shift+S or through Tools menu

Office Master Task Chairs

Office Master Chair Ordering Instructions

Please email: ergonomics-slac@slac.stanford.edu to request a quote for a chair. In your email, specify the name and email address of the user, the shipping address for the chair, the height of the user, the chair model, and armrest model. If the chair will be used on hard flooring only, please specify soft casters are needed. Chairs delivered on-site will arrive assembled.

The Ergonomics team will submit a request for a quote to our vendor, Cube Solutions. Cube Solutions will provide a quote via email within a few business days. Once you place your order with Cube Solutions, the estimated lead time is 5-7 weeks due to global shipping delays.

Chair Adjustment Instructional Videos
